Add/Modify/Delete Keywords Where possible, short text in the document is entered as Keywords (e.g. John, Mary) for quickly locating text in the document. Keywords can be edited, and you can add/delete them. It's your choice whether or not to use keywords and how many keywords you want to use. For example: Your document is a simple table of contents, but you want to allow users to add keywords to their own document. You can add keywords by double clicking on them, or by using the "Add keyword" button. You can also edit existing keywords. Keywords are a handy way to make searching faster and easier. Keywords can be created in the Main Menu by clicking on the "Keywords" button. Keywords can be removed with the "Delete all keywords" button. Main Menu You can also add and edit keywords from the "Keywords" dialog box. The Main Menu dialog box includes a list of all your keywords, as well as a list of the keywords you have used previously (if any). You can also create new keywords. To edit a keyword: Double click on it. You can delete a keyword by clicking on the "Delete all keywords" button. Notes In the Main Menu, if you enter a keyword in the "Author", "Title" and "Keywords" tabs and add it to the document, then the word will be saved in the new document created from scratch in the same format as if you had added it to the original document. If you enter a keyword in only one of the other tabs, it will be saved in the document only. If you add a keyword to the Main Menu, you will not be able to delete it from the document. If you enter a keyword in the Main Menu, it will not be saved in the document. If a keyword is already in the document, it will not be added to the document again if you enter it in the Main Menu. You can delete a keyword from the Main Menu, or the document, by using the "Delete" button. Help You can get help on the basics and use of the software. Menu Help is accessed by clicking on the "
