The latest version of the popular application is often referred to as Internet Explorer or simply IE. Netscape Communicator Who says there is nothing out there? I have been searching for the best and most popular E book on the subject of virtual worlds for a long time. I have tried, to find a book or a tutorial that would let me get to grips with the subject. As a result I have found several (about 80 plus actually) books on the subject and even tutorials. However, as a beginner (which is not to say I am no longer an experienced person) I don't want to just read the blog posts, watch the video tutorials, find the pdfs on the web and be done with it, I really would like to have some kind of reference manual, a book which could solve the internet virtual worlds blanks for me. So - my question is, is there such a book? Something that would explain what the virtual world software is and how it works; what features it has, and what tools it uses, etc. Thanks for your time, I look forward to your reply. The company's fire and brimstone CEO sent a company email to all AOLers advising them to sign up for a customer service relationship with Microsoft. Oops. Netscape calls the feature a 'forced migration' to Windows and the whole process is not particularly smooth. (see more) (see less)Q: Trigger error in Stored Procedure I have created a trigger using SQL Server Management Studio that is defined as follows (this is just a snippet):
`CREATE TRIGGER dbo.some_trigger ON dbo.some_table FOR INSERT AS BEGIN SET NOCOUNT ON; DECLARE @SomeID INT; DECLARE @SomeName VARCHAR(MAX); SELECT @SomeID = SCOPE_IDENTITY(); SELECT @SomeName = SomeName; INSERT INTO SomeOtherTable(SomethingID, SomethingName) VALUES (@SomeID, @SomeName); END;`
I created this trigger using SQL Server Management Studio - it worked fine. In a different SQL Server Management Studio window, I then wanted to create this same trigger using the following code:
`ALTER TRIGGER [some_trigger] ON [dbo].[some_table] FOR INSERT AS BEGIN SET NOCOUNT ON; DECLARE @SomeID INT; DECLARE @SomeName VARCHAR(MAX); SELECT @SomeID = SCOPE_IDENTITY(); SELECT @SomeName = SomeName; INSERT INTO SomeOtherTable(SomethingID, SomethingName) VALUES (@SomeID, @SomeName); END;`
When I run the above code, I get the following error: Msg 208, Level 16, State 0, Procedure some_trigger, Line 3 Cannot return a value from a user-defined trigger I understand that the error occurs because the `SELECT @SomeID, @SomeName...` is coming from the context of the trigger itself, and not from the context of the main `SELECT` statement.
